

Name - The - Band Contest Offers Cash Prize to Winner

All Students Eligible To Compete To Provide Band a Popular Name

In many colleges and universities there is a dance band which year after year functions under the same name and, though individual players come and go, the band has grown into a campus institution.

At the beginning of the school year, a group of young men students thought it would be a good idea if such a band was organized on the campus of the University of New Hampshire. After much diligent work and practice, a fifteen-piece band was organized and is now functioning. This orchestra is a cooperative outfit strictly organized for smooth dancing with emphasis on the latest popular dance hits, and featuring certain instrumentalists.

All Students Eligible

A movement has begun to give this 15-piece campus orchestra a name that will become a traditional one year after year. To get a name that will appeal to all the student body, and to actually make this band a product of our campus, a contest will be held with all the students of this university eligible. All you have to do is write down the name, or names, of your choice and mail them to: Box 94, Durham, N. H.

For the name chosen by the entire orchestra, a sum of five dollars will be paid to the person submitting the winning name. The band name will be announced and the award made at the ASME dance which will be held January 27, 1945 at New Hampshire Hall.

All entries must be in the mail by no later than midnight, January 23, 1945. It is hoped that the entire student body will participate in this effort to name "your band."

NOTICE

There will be a regular veterans' meeting for the Student Veterans' Organization on Monday evening, January 15, 1945. The meeting will begin at 6:30 p.m. in the Commons Trophy Room. All members are requested to be present.

Meteorology Division Compiles Data for U. S. Weather Bureau

by Margery Byers

The meteorological phases of the Geology Department fall under two distinct headings, and Professor Donald H. Chapman is in charge of this division.

The first aim is to teach students who are interested in the general aspects of meteorology. Many are enrolled in the College of Liberal Arts, and do not intend to train for a professional career in this field, but would like to know something about the weather. The beginning course needs no prerequisites, and all furnish the basic knowledge necessary to go further into the subject. It is impossible to train future meteorologists in a school of this size, as the university does not have the equipment to do so.

The students work on weather maps, familiarize themselves with code, and make their own elementary predictions. Professor Ralph T. Meyers teaches a course in Meteorological Observation, (Meteorology 25), which instructs the students in the use and care of instruments, how observations are taken, recorded, and then sent into a weather station.

Those who intend to major in meteorology should thoroughly acquaint themselves with math and physics, as these two subjects are greatly applied in graduate schools. There will be a great demand for trained people in this field after the war. Although there are a large number now in the services, some will leave for occupations in other branches of interest.

Men's Council Plans '45 Granite Sittings Begin Next Monday

Arrangements for a Student Council dance, to be held sometime in March, were discussed at the first meeting of the Student Council, after the holidays. It was decided to make this dance as much like a pre-war dance as possible. Contacts have been sent out for a name band, and approval has been given to hold it from 9:00 p.m. to 2:00 a.m.

It was voted to conduct a date bureau jointly with Student Government. Joseph Bennett and Bud Welch were appointed to this bureau which will contact outstanding universities of the east for dates for our coming college weekends, such as Carnival Ball, and Council dance. Women will be informed later as to how this bureau will function.

It was voted to hold an emergency meeting to discuss further plans for the dance.

Plans to Aid Teachers And War Vets Keynote Of 1945 Summer Session

The appointment of Dr. A. Monroe Stowe, professor of education and chairman of the division of teacher education, as chairman of the 1945 Summer School committee of the University of New Hampshire was announced today by President Harold W. Stoke. The six-week summer session will open on July 2 and close August 10, with the possibility of special inter-session courses being offered for veterans and others.

In an interview recently, Dr. Stowe said, "The keynote of the 1945 Summer School will be helpfulness to teachers and other groups who can be served by the University of New Hampshire." He then briefly outlined the plans upon which the Summer School committee is at work.

All courses necessary to meet the state teacher certification requirements will be offered, to assist the elementary and secondary school teachers who are now on provisional certificates during the emergency. Courses will also be offered to help superintendents and headmasters do the work required for certification. Demonstration classes in elementary school subjects for observation purposes will be continued in connection with courses for teachers and supervisors in elementary schools.

Workshop Courses Offered

To meet the postwar needs of high school students the committee is considering offering workshop courses in the reorganization of the secondary school curriculum and in educational and vocational guidance.

Undergraduate courses in a wide variety of liberal arts subject-matter fields will be offered. The committee is canvassing the needs of students in the colleges of agriculture and technology which might be met in summer school or inter-session classes.

Special efforts will be made to meet the educational and vocational needs of the returning veterans who are attending the University of New Hampshire under the Postwar Education Service.

Admission to the University of New Hampshire Summer School will be (continued on page 4)

Railroad Exhibit On Display at Library

A new exhibit is now on display in the music room of the library. One of the largest collections the library has had in a great while, this varied selection of railroad photographs was assembled by the Library of Congress, Washington, D. C.

In this exhibit, emphasis has been placed on the part railroads play in the war effort. Each hour of the day and night over two million freight cars move in and out of the nation's yards and terminals, carrying the goods of war.

Toiling men and women make the great job of the railroad possible. Many of the photographs show the work done by the employees of the country's railroads. Others show the trains, passenger and freight, that speed across the millions of miles of track connecting all parts of our vast continent.

The Year Ahead

Five months ago it seemed that the war in Europe might be over today. Four months ago it appeared probable that the turn of 1945 might find us as well on the road to reconversion, living toward peacetime existence.

Three months ago it seemed that we might be able to turn our full strength against Japan even though Germany might not have been beaten within the calendar year. Two months ago it seemed that once our presidential election was over, the world could set about with hope and enthusiasm to build a permanent structure for peace on the foundations laid at Dunbarton Oaks.

Today we know that the year 1945 will be a year of hard tasks and fatal actions. We shall suffer somewhat from the summer spree of overconfidence and relaxation, but now at least we know that we are still fighting bitterly against two desperate enemies whose strength and determination are by no means exhausted.

This year is likely to bring the heaviest casualties that America has suffered in any year of any war. There will be bad news of setbacks and delays along with the good news of victories. And the bad news will be harder to bear because the final victory may be almost in sight.

It will be a year of diligence for all of us here at home. We shall have to guard against impatience and discouragement and war weariness. We shall have to prove to ourselves and to the men who are fighting the war that we can take it, stay on the job, supplying these fighting men's needs in abundance and not cheapen their sacrifices with our petty complaints.

From our government, 1945 will ask a more vigorous and wiser world leadership than has ever been required by an American government. For the President and military leaders, the year will bring more endless days of imperative decisions. From the new Congress, it will demand a selfless, partyless patriotism that must guard against action fatal to world peace.

But this is also a year of hope. The first of 1942 found the country almost too stunned to realize its peril, after the day of infamy, December 7, 1941. Two years ago the road from Africa to Berlin and from Guadalcanal to Tokyo seemed endless. Last year the great gamble of D-Day lay in the doubtful future.

Great strides can be taken in 1945. We have a superior military force with superior leadership. We have the confidence of most of the world's peoples as the guarantors of freedom and fair dealings. We have the potentialities of still greater strength to throw into the battles for victory and peace.

These are the responsibilities as well as resources. To use them fully and wisely is a job that calls for conscious increased effort by all of us . . . from President and general to housewife and schoolboy. What Americans do in the next 365 days will have profound effect on the shape of things to come.

World Organization Group Established

The common people are fighting this war. They are giving their lives for an ideal that their leaders may forget. To many of our statesmen the words "blood, sweat and tears" are only words, and broken, twisted and lost lives mean far less to them than lost money or lost land. They don't know the real meaning of war. But the soldier and the worker who fights behind him know the meaning of war. They know that it's ultimate purpose must be nothing but a permanent peace, a peace in which all men can live and work together in harmonious understanding.

In 1917 they said, "This is the war to end wars; this is the war to make the world safe for democracy." And it might have been had the people made the peace. Instead they left it to their leaders, and just look how they "muffed" the job.

Now, in 1945, we are getting another chance. This time the people must let themselves be heard, and they must make their voice effective. As individuals the American people can do very little—but united they can sway the world. And they must sway the world! As they are winning the war so must they win the peace. They must be organized into a body so that the force of numerical strength can influence public opinion for a world organization in which the United States will play its part in preventing future wars. For this purpose AMERICANS UNITED FOR WORLD ORGANIZATION has been established.

This organization has as its immediate aims the mobilization of public sentiment and the mass enrollment of the American people in a nation-wide, non-partisan campaign of action for winning peace after victory. It advocates a world organization open to all nations for the settlement of disputes and the prevention of aggression. It supports those economic plans that will promote a higher standard of living and freedom from want for all our people. It fights racial and religious discrimination; and combats subversive activity abroad and defeatist, reactionary and imperialistic propaganda here at home.

It urges the acceptance of these principles by our Congressmen, Senators, the State Department and the President. And furthermore, it advocates this policy for every state and congressional district in the country.

This is America's great opportunity. It is the people's chance to join in winning the peace. It may be the only chance and it must be supported by all who believe in the American ideal.

CIVIL AIR PATROL NEWS

by Warren Robbins

It is hoped that this column in the New Hampshire will serve as a medium to disseminate information and issue notices pertinent to CAP on campus and nationally. Every member of CAP and all those who are contemplating membership are urged to read this column each week and to watch for important notices and news of interest to you all. In this way we will be able to keep you posted concerning any new phases of activity and any new regulations that might arise. Any questions, also, that might arise among the members will be answered here.

Photographed and Fingerprinted

At the January 4th meeting of the Civil Air Patrol, all those members present were fingerprinted and photographed under the direction of Lieutenant Durfee of the New Hampshire State Police. In addition, measurements were taken for uniforms, to be arranged for as soon as possible.

Those members who were absent from this meeting will have the opportunity to be fingerprinted at the Field House at a later date, but they must be photographed individually and at their own expense according to the following specifications: The size of the picture must be 2½ x 2½ inches, showing full front view of the face with the head size approximately 1¼ inches in height. This can probably be done at the University Photography Studio for a nominal fee and should be done as soon as possible so that they can accompany the applications to National Headquarters. Cadet applications have already been passed out and should be typewritten, and filled out in duplicate, but not carboned. The forms should not be folded or defaced in any way and require a parent's consent in the space provided. Regular CAP applications will be given out to each member over eighteen years of age as soon as they are received from Wing Headquarters.

Misconception Among Members

A misconception has arisen among some of the members of the UNH Flight which has even caused some individuals to leave the Unit. They believe that in becoming members of the CAP, they assume certain obligations of service which might be similar to being drafted. This idea is entirely erroneous and we hasten to point out that no responsibilities go with CAP membership other than active interest and participation in its activities, manifest by regular attendance. Although members are sworn in with the regular army oath, they can be honorably discharged at any time upon request and would only be called upon for actual war service, should the occasion arise, upon a strictly volunteer basis. The main purpose of a Unit such as the one at the University is to provide training and increase and maintain interest in aviation during and after the war. Although we intend to include such things as a "Crash Unit" within our scope, participation in those activities is definitely on a volunteer basis.

Orientation Flights

At a meeting of the staff on Tuesday, in DeMerritt Hall, plans were discussed and formulated to have the members of the UNH Flight travel by chartered bus to a nearby airport to receive free orientation airplane flights in regular Army Air Force L-2-M trainers. Colonel John F. Brown, Commanding Officer of the New Hampshire Wing has announced that six of this type of aircraft have been placed at the disposal of the New Hampshire Wing and will be available for use by our unit on certain dates in the near future.

24-Hour Clock

For the benefit of those members who do not understand how the 24-hour clock is read, and since the CAP like other branches of the Army and Navy use this means of recording time, a brief explanation might be in order. Time is recorded the same as on our regular watches except that the day is not divided into two twelve-hour periods, but continues on until midnight. 9 a.m. is read 0900, 1 p.m. as 1300, 2 o'clock as 1400, etc., and 1900 o'clock meeting time is 7 p.m. The simplest method of transposing army time to civilian time is merely to subtract twelve from any hour later than twelve noon and the result will be the time on our own watches. For example,

Mike and Dial Plans Comeback on Campus

Mike and Dial, the campus radio organization, which was started by a group of students several years ago, and which had developed into one of the leading campus clubs until the outbreak of the war, is now making plans to renew its activity and regain its prestige.

It was through the initiative and talent of the students on campus that the club was able to rise to its pre-war standing. Original plays were directed and produced by the club members over the facilities of station WHEB in Portsmouth. Through this and other mediums, actors, script-writers, directors and sound effects specialists were able to express themselves in these various phases of radio production.

It is the desire of the present members and the board of directors to bring Mike and Dial back to its pre-war status, but to accomplish this it is essential that the club have student cooperation. Without that, there can be no aspirations for a successful future.

There is no reason now that Mike and Dial cannot once again produce such hits as "Fall of the House of Usher," "To the Young" by Norman Corwin, "Christmas Carol" by Dickens, "Silver Coronet" and many others too numerous to list.

The club at present is governed by the following board of directors; Program Director, Marian Gorman; Head Announcer, Warren Robbins; Script Writers, Natalie Brooks and Roger DeHayes; Technical Director, Anna Karanikas; Publicity Director, Lila Sprague; Secretary-Treasurer, Barbara Hayden.

To anyone who might be interested in Mike and Dial, it would be worth their while to attend an important meeting on January 16, at 4:00 p.m., in the radio room on the third floor, "T" Hall.

Its affiliation with the U. S. Weather Bureau is the second important function of meteorology in the university. This is a cooperative weather station, one of several hundred, and all are on, or close to, the major airways of the country. The personnel is made up of students who act as weather observers and are not necessarily majors in meteorology. They make readings hourly, day and night which are telephoned long distance to East Boston, directly to the airport. The information is coded and sent by teletype to all airways in the northeastern part of the United States and Canada.

Durham is in a fairly strategic position, being halfway between Portland and Boston, a commercial line, and between Manchester-Portland, which is on the American Ferry Command route to Newfoundland. Before leaving, they look over the weather on the course, and one reading is that of Durham, which is just outside the fog belt.

The primary function is not one of prediction, but of observation and the sending in of data.

At the university, the emphasis is not on a highly technical course, but on the dissemination of information to those who want it, and not as a part of a profession. Most of the students are those who enjoy seeing changes in the weather, and get enough to make predictions of their own for the next six or twelve hours, by the end of the semester.

The wind instrument (anemometer) is located on top of Conant, but the amount of wind velocity and direction can be read from a recording machine on the second floor. In front of the building are to be found the wet and dry thermometers, and the precipitation gauge.

The weather observers here on campus are in constant touch with the Boston office, and are able to give information for Durham. A continuous record is kept if you hear an announcement at a meeting that a certain class will begin at 2000 o'clock, you will know that (by subtracting 12 from 20-00) the hour set for the class is eight o'clock.

New Hampshire Hoopsters to Open Season Against Camp Langdon

WILDCATCHINGS

by Jack McGinn

Basketball is here again, and to stay. The University of New Hampshire will floor a varsity quintet this season after an elongated absence.

Coach Hank Swasey, the veteran Wildcat mentor, called all candidates together last Wednesday and was greeted by 16 men, a smaller number than was expected. Of the 16 berth seekers not one has had any previous college experience but have seen plenty of action on the schoolboy courts. Among these we find "Rip" Therrian All State choice while playing under the colors of Stevens High of Claremont, New Hampshire. "Rip" won the coveted award two straight seasons. Another red hot prospect is Andy Mooradian former Revere star. Andy was a Boston Globe "All" choice for two seasons back in 1941 and '42. Both these boys have played a lot of basketball and their experience should be an asset to the Wildcat squad.

Athletic Director Carl Lundholm has arranged a rugged schedule for the team including three service quintets. Yours Truly has rummaged around here and there trying to gather a few facts on the comparative strength of these teams but so far is pretty much in the fog. Our efforts weren't entirely fruitless however and we picked a few items of interest and here they are.

Camp Langdon (Portsmouth Harbor Defenses) has a good team and it is one of power. They will take on anybody from a high school team to a pro quintet. The soldiers have soundly shellacked Phillips Exeter twice and as far as we know have only been beaten once and that by another service team.

The Sanford Naval Air Station, (Sanford, Maine) has a team that varies in strength from week to week as the gobs are constantly on the move. Their outstanding star is Rogers, an ex-Boston College ace. This sailor holds down the center berth and can really sink 'em. Other former college players fill up the ranks and they have gained several victories over tough competition. Their one loss thus far sustained was against a V-12 studded Bates outfit.

Maine's calibre is unknown but Bill Kenyon always comes up with plenty of surprises especially against New Hampshire and they will be no pushover.

Northeastern and Boston University are power laden in every sense of the word. Northeastern has been knocking off service teams from in and around Boston with amazing rapidity and they have a pair of forwards who racked 106 points between them in two recent games. That spells danger. Northeastern's good neighbor B. U. is as yet, I believe, untested but from authentic reports have a 6-foot 4-inch center who can really handle the ball and snag it off the backboards a'la Kurkland.

Well, good friends, that's all the information we have been able to pick up but we'll be on the lookout twenty-four hours a day (that will be the day) to find out all or nothing at all. Most likely nothing.

Informal Quintet Started After One Year Absence, Eight Game Slate Carded

After an absence of one year, basketball returns to the University of New Hampshire this season on an informal basis. The opening game is this Tuesday with a strong Portsmouth Harbor defense outfit. The starting team for the fray has not been announced for the primary reason that Coach Hank Swasey has not had ample time to work out with the boys. The practice sessions have been long and gruelling and the squad should be in top notch playing condition for the duel. Game time is 7:30 sharp and the university should be out in full force to greet the opening of the Wildcat season. Shorty Bulgurs' Pepcats will be on hand and also in the groove.

As stated above Coach Swasey has had very little time to spend with the boys as the Army had an extensive physical education program and he had to fill in on the war depleted gym staff. The Army has left however and now the veteran Wildcat coach may spend plenty of time with the squad.

The eight game slate announced by Carl Lundholm is one that should offer keen competition and afford plenty of excitement to the fans and players alike. Seven games are to be played at Lewis Field House while the remaining game is to be played at the University of Maine. All duels are to be held on Tuesdays and Saturdays with the Tuesday games starting at 7:30 while the Saturday encounters are to start at 3:00.

The schedule is as follows:
Jan. 16—Portsmouth Harbor Defenses
Jan. 20—Northeastern University
Jan. 23—Portsmouth Naval Hospital
Jan. 27—University of Maine (at Orono)
Feb. 13—Sanford Naval Air Station
Feb. 17—Boston University
Feb. 20—Lowell Textile
Feb. 24—University of Maine
